Sex Charges Dropped In Deal With Ex-Cop

By LINDA WILCOX
Press-Journal Staff Writer

Two years after charging him with sexually molesting five teen-age boys, the state Thursday dropped all remaining felony counts against former Vero Beach police officer James Scharfschwerdt.

As part of a plea bargain, Scharfschwerdt, 33, pleaded no contest to a single count of battery.

The battery charge stemmed from an incident on Oct. 18, 1988, when police officers placed a hidden microphone on one of the alleged victims and sent him to Scharfschwerdt's home.

Scharfschwerdt suspected the boy was wired and frisked him. The victim was not injured.

Circuit Judge Paul B. Kanarek found Scharfschwerdt guilty of the first-degree misdemeanor and sentenced him to one year of probation, ordering him to forfeit his law enforcement certification permanently and submit to mental health counseling.

"I believe it's in my best interest," Scharfschwerdt said. "It's been a long two years. These allegations against me have taken their toll It's cost me my life."

After court was recessed, he hugged his wife, shook his father's hand and said, "Let's go home." He walked out to the applause of a crowd of friends and relatives.

"This is the end of the case," defense attorney Michael Brodsky said.

Brodsky said as part of the plea agreement, negotiated over the past week, the state cannot refile any of the molestation charges.

Assistant State Attorney Lynn Park said she dropped the remaining lewd and lascivious charges — four were disposed of when Scharfschwerdt was acquitted in a trial last year — because it was in the best interest of the victims.

Two are reportedly undergoing psychological counseling.

She also said there were problems in the upcoming trial because the victim couldn't remember if the alleged abuse happened in 1983 or 1984.

It would have been difficult to explain why the victim didn't come forward until last week to report an alleged statement by Scharfschwerdt admitting he needed help, she said.

"I felt it strengthened our case, but the fact he only told me a few weeks before the trial ... they could have hurt him badly on the stand."

Vero Beach Police Capt. Ronald Blanton, the case detective, remains "100 percent convinced" of Scharfschwerdt's guilt.

"I have no doubt in my mind," Blanton said. "He's a pedophile. He'll always be a pedophile. He's not going to be cured."

He noted the victim of the case tried last year suffered further abuse at the hands of peers who called him names like "queer" and "faggot" and eventually dropped out of school.

Chief Jim Gabbard said he "certainly was disappointed" at Thursday's outcome of the case.

"I have very strong feelings regarding this case, but those opinions just didn't prevail," he said. "I'm powerless to pursue it any further."

State drops former cop's abuse charges

By PHIL LONG
Herald Staff Writer

VERO BEACH — With their case starting to unravel, prosecutors dropped eight felony sex abuse charges against a popular ex-cop and scout leader Wednesday in exchange for a guilty plea of one misdemeanor.

The action came during an unusual evening court hearing in which James Scharfschwerdt, 33, pleaded no contest to a nonsex-related misdemeanor charge of battery.

Scharfschwerdt, a former Vero Beach police officer and ex-deputy for the Indian River County Sheriff's Department, was immediately sentenced to a year of probation.

As a stipulation of that probation, the 12-year veteran cop must give up his police license forever and must undergo a year of "stress counseling," said Mike Brodsky, Scharfschwerdt's attorney.

"I was innocent," an ebullient Scharfschwerdt said as he was mobbed by about two dozen supporters after the hearing. "I said so from the start, and this proves it."

"It's gone, it's over," the tearful Scharfschwerdt said as he hugged his pregnant wife, Wanda.

"Good," his father answered.

"Let's go home," the ex-officer called loudly as many of his friends broke into applause.

One of the most talked-about criminal cases in Indian River County in the past two years had come to a surprise ending. It began with five alleged victims and 13 felony sex charges.

Assistant State Attorney Lynn
Park said that changes in witnesses' testimony had begun to erode the credibility of the state's case. For example, the alleged victim in one of the cases changed a key part of his story. He was "off by a year in the dates he first gave," Park said.

It is not that victims or other witnesses are not truthful, Park said.
The problem was that the alleged crimes occurred as far back as 1984, when most of the victims were 13 or 14 years old. Most of the alleged victims were not interviewed by authorities until perhaps four years after the alleged incidents.

Park had taken Scharfschwerdt to trial in 1989 and lost. The jury found

GUILTY OF MISDEMEANOR:
Other charges against James Scharfschwerdt dropped.

him not guilty.

The cases against Scharfschwerdt had other problems, Park said. One of the remaining charges involves a youth who is under psychiatric treatment for unrelated problems, and one of the other victims was not a strong witness, Park said.

"Overall, we assessed the case and decided this was best for everyone," she said. Park said she talked to several people involved in the case, including two of the three remaining victims, and they agree.

Under the terms of an agreement approved by Circuit Judge Paul Kanarek, Scharfschwerdt pleaded no contest to misdemeanor battery on one of the victims that occurred the night Scharfschwerdt was arrested in 1988.

In their investigation, detectives had placed a hidden microphone and transmitter on a teen-age boy and sent him to Scharfschwerdt's house to see if they could record him saying something incriminating.

Scharfschwerdt, suspicious of the youth's unexpected call, searched the boy and found the microphone.
Surprised by Scharfschwerdt's reaction, police rushed in and arrested Scharfschwerdt on charges of simple battery, a misdemeanor.

Park said that the witnesses and alleged victims she talked to were pleased that Scharfschwerdt would give up his badge and get counseling.

CONF011638

Molestation Trial Date Set For Ex-Cop

By LINDA WILCOX
Press-Journal Staff Writer

Former Vero Beach police officer James Scharfschwerdt is scheduled to stand trial in December for a second time on child molestation charges.

Two months after Acting Circuit Judge Joe Wild disqualified himself from presiding at the trial, Circuit Judge Paul B. Kanarek has been assigned to the case.

The trial is set for 9 a.m. Dec. 3.

Wild recused himself at the request of defense attorney Michael Brodsky, who alleged Wild could not be impartial because of his relationship with Assistant State Attorney David Morgan.

Wild was a prosecutor working under Morgan when the Scharfschwerdt case broke in late 1988. Brodsky has accused Morgan of coercing and manipulating the testimony of alleged victims, but no action has been taken on the allegations.

State Attorney Bruce Colton has denied Brodsky's contentions and said Morgan acted properly during the investigation.

Scharfschwerdt, 33, the city's former beach patrol officer, was arrested in October 1988 on charges of lewd and lascivious conduct with five teen-age boys.

He resigned shortly after the arrest and stood trial for the first time in August 1989, with Kanarek presiding. A jury acquitted Scharfschwerdt of molesting a 13-year-old boy in 1986. Four other trials on eight counts remain.

Assistant State Attorney Lynn Park has said the next trial will be based on allegations that Scharfschwerdt sexually molested another teen-age boy in 1983.

She could not be reached for comment on the upcoming trial, but said after last year's trial that the alleged victim of the 1983 case is a "very credible young man."

Vero Beach Police Chief Jim Gabbard declined to comment on the pending trial.

At last year's trial, Brodsky suggested the two alleged victims who testified against Scharfschwerdt made up their stories because they wanted to get him in trouble.

Some jurors agreed that the boys could have been trying to get revenge against Scharfschwerdt.

Judge Wild Steps Down From Trial

By LINDA WILCOX
Press-Journal Staff Writer

Acting Circuit Judge Joe Wild disqualified himself Wednesday from presiding at the upcoming child molestation trial of a former police officer amid allegations of bias and prejudice.

Wild granted a motion for disqualification filed by Miami defense attorney Michael Brodsky, who represents 32-year-old Vero Beach resident James H. Scharfschwerdt.

Scharfschwerdt worked for the Vero Beach Police Department as beach patrol officer until he resigned after his October 1988 arrest on charges of lewd and lascivious conduct with five teen-age boys.

He was acquitted of four charges at a trial in August 1989. A second trial has not yet been set but is expected to be held in October after the case is reassigned to another judge.

Brodsky alleged Wild could not be an impartial judge because he used to work as a prosecutor under the direction of Assistant State Attorney David Morgan, whom Brodsky said "coerced and manipulated" the testimony of alleged victims.

Although Wild was never assigned to investigate or prosecute the case against Scharfschwerdt, the defense attorney said Wild's relationship with Morgan was enough to cause a "well-grounded fear" that Wild could not be impartial.

Brodsky accused Morgan of coercing one of the victims into making false allegations against Scharfschwerdt.

Brodsky also alleged that Morgan "repeatedly" communicated with another victim in violation of a court order limiting the interviews of any victim of sexual abuse under 16.

The defense asked the court last year to determine whether Morgan should be held in contempt for doing so, but Circuit Judge Paul B. Kanarek, who was assigned the case at the time, never held a hearing on the matter.

State Attorney Bruce Colton defended Morgan's actions.

"I am aware of Dave Morgan's involvement in the investigation and I don't feel he did anything improper," Colton said. "When the evidence comes out at trial, that will be evident."

Colton said some of Brodsky's allegations are inaccurate and others are irrelevant to the case.

"They're trying to cloud the issue," he said. Colton said the issue is whether the victim is telling the truth, not alleged prosecutorial misconduct.

"Many witnesses at times are reluctant to tell the truth at first for a number of reasons. It takes, sometimes, some coaxing or pressure," Colton said.

As to allegations that Morgan violated a court order limiting communications with young victims, Colton said the order only applies to compelling them to testify and not voluntary discussions.

Park said the next trial — the second of a possible four on eight remaining counts — will revolve around allegations that Scharfschwerdt sexually molested a teen-age boy in 1983.

Ex-officer's attorney seeks to block trial

By PHIL LONG
Indian River Bureau Chief

VERO BEACH — An appeals court in West Palm Beach is expected to rule today or Friday on an emergency request to block next week's trial of a former police officer.

James Scharfschwerdt, a former St. Lucie County jailer, Indian River County sheriff's deputy and Vero Beach police patrolman, is scheduled to start trial Monday. He's charged with lewd and lascivious conduct and sexual battery involving a boy, 13.

In an effort to give people additional time to report sexual abuse that happened when they were children, the Florida Legislature ruled in 1985 that sex-crime victims have until the age of 19 or 20 to report them.

The acts Scharfschwerdt is accused of took place six years ago, in 1983. The alleged victim is now 19.

In a motion filed this week, defense attorney Michael Brodsky told the Fourth District Court of Appeal that Indian River Circuit Judge Paul Kanarek erred by not tossing out the case.

The law in effect in 1983 was for a three-year statute of limitations on lewd and lascivious conduct and four years on sexual battery, Brodsky said.

But in a document filed with the appeals court Wednesday, the Attorney General's Office agreed with Kanarek and with Lynn Park, the assistant state attorney prosecuting the case, who said the law can be applied retroactively.

If the appeals court asks for more information from each side, both Park and Brodsky said, it is unlikely the trial will start next week.

A circuit court jury in Vero Beach last month acquitted Scharfschwerdt of four counts of sexual misconduct with another teen-age boy.

Besides the trial scheduled for next week, the ex-officer faces similar charges involving "70 other youths.

Scharfschwerdt Acquitted By Jury

A jury Wednesday acquitted former police officer James Scharfschwerdt of charges he sexually abused a 13-year-old boy in August 1986.

After three hours and 40 minutes of deliberation, the five-woman, one-man panel found the defendant not guilty of four counts of lewd and lascivious assault on a child under 16.

The jury, which wavered on a decision earlier in its deliberations, reached the verdict at 6:25 p.m. after Circuit Judge Paul B. Karmark told them that failure to reach a unanimous vote would result in a mistrial.

Defense attorney Michael Brodsky said the verdict was "absolutely correct."

"The man has a reputation in the community that speaks for itself," he said of his client, who was described by some witnesses as a citizen of good moral character.

Scharfschwerdt, who still faces charges that he sexually molested three other boys, had no comment. Unless the state drops those charges, Scharfschwerdt will stand trial three more times on seven counts of lewd and lascivious assault and one count of sexual battery.

Assistant State Attorney Lynn Park said she planned to "reassess" the other cases against the defendant. In the meantime, Karmark said he would schedule the second trial on the September docket.

Park, who had urged the jury to believe the testimony of two teenage boys allegedly molested by Scharfschwerdt, said it was "difficult for people to convict on the word of a young person."

Accused Scharfschwerdt Resigns From Department

By LAURA FARRELL
Press-Journal Staff Writer

James Scharfschwerdt, the 31-year-old Vero Beach police officer facing 12 charges of sexually related incidents involving minors, resigned from the force Thursday morning.

Police Chief James Gabbard said Scharfschwerdt submitted a letter of resignation citing the sexual misconduct allegations and the resulting criminal charges as his main reason for resigning.

"He said he was unjustly accused and it would be best for all if he resigned," Gabbard said.

Neither Scharfschwerdt nor his attorney, Michael Brodski of Miami, could be reached for comment.

Initially, Scharfschwerdt was charged Oct. 18 with four felony counts of committing a lewd or lascivious act upon a child under 16 years of age.

On Oct. 21, he was arrested and charged additionally with two counts of sexual battery and three counts of lewd or lascivious acts on two boys under the age of 16.

Then, on Nov. 8, Scharfschwerdt turned himself in after police obtained warrants for his arrest on three more charges: one count of sexual battery and two counts of lewd or indecent acts upon a minor.

Some of the incidents reportedly occurred while the youths were members of the Indian River County Sheriff's and Vero Beach Police departments' Explorers posts. Scharfschwerdt was an adviser in the training programs for teens considering law enforcement careers.

Scharfschwerdt had been suspended from the Police Department without pay since Oct. 21.

"We don't like to hear these things about our officers and it has adversely affected the force's morale," Gabbard said. "It's a very difficult thing."

Ex-officer asks judge to reduce his bond

By PHIL LONG
Indian River Bureau Chief

VERO BEACH — Former Vero Beach Police officer James Scharfschwerdt has asked a judge to reduce his bond and to declare him indigent, court officials said Monday.

Disclosure of the motions came following Scharfschwerdt's resignation from the police force late last week. The officer had been on suspension without pay.

Scharfschwerdt is charged with three counts of sexual battery and nine counts of lewd and lascivious conduct against four boys ages 12 and 13. In most of the cases, the 31-year-old former patrolman and former sheriff's deputy is accused of masturbating the teenagers, performing oral sex on them or masturbating in front of them.

He is out of jail on total bond of $111,000. In addition to the $11,100 cash premium Scharfschwerdt paid, several friends and family members pledged property as security for the bond.

The officer is scheduled to be arraigned on all the charges Jan. 9. The hearings on his motion for bond reduction and declaration of indigence will probably be held the week before, a spokesman for Circuit Judge Paul Kanarek said Monday.

In his letter of resignation, Scharfschwerdt was critical of Vero Beach Police Chief Jim Gabbard and of his fellow officers who investigated him. Gabbard declined Monday to comment on the letter.

The letter was also Scharfschwerdt's first comment since his original arrest Oct. 18. He has been arrested twice since.

"Although I have spent numerous years devoted to law enforcement and to the youth of Vero Beach and Indian River County," Scharfschwerdt wrote to Gabbard, "you have unjustly permitted the lives of my wife, my beautiful young child and myself to be morally and financially destroyed."

Scharfschwerdt accused Gabbard of allowing an investigation that "has encouraged an solicited false accusations while ignoring the truth." He said officers "manufactured evidence in an attempt to corroborate those false accusations."

"You have attempted to prejudice the public against me by manipulating the press," Scharfschwerdt

James Scharfschwerdt Accused in sex-abuse case.

wrote.

"I thank God there are still people in the community who believe in me and know that I am incapable of committing those heinous acts for which I am now charged."

Scharfschwerdt said that regardless of his confidence that he will be acquitted, "I could never return to your department because of the irreparable harm that has resulted. Nor could I ever serve under a chief who would sanction the biased and vicious investigation that you have allowed in my case."

Wake Of Officer's Arrest

Police Plan To Interview Explorer Post Teen-Agers

By JAMES KIRLEY
Press-Journal Staff Writer

Vero Beach police investigating child molestation charges against a member of their own ranks said Thursday they will speak to teens in Explorer's Post 500 where Patrolman James Howard Scharfschwerdt was an adviser. "We're interviewing present and past police explorers," Police Chief James Gabbard said. "We're also going to interview the explorers in the sheriff's office, from when Jim Scharfschwerdt was there." Scharfschwerdt, 31, was charged Tuesday with four counts of lewd or lascivious acts upon a child under 16. The accused officer first met the boy through the Vero Beach Police Explorer unit, and allegedly engaged in the sex acts between February 1985 and January 1987. The victim's identity is being kept secret, and investigators have refused to discuss how the case was brought to their attention. Scharfschwerdt, whose most recent assignment was on the city's new motorized beach patrol, has been suspended pending resolution of the case. Repeated attempts to reach him have been unsuccessful. He joined the Vero Beach force Feb. 12, 1985, during the tenure of Police Chief Sam McCall. A month earlier, Sheriff Tim Dobeck had noted Scharfschwerdt he would not be reappointed as a deputy. Scharfschwerdt worked with the sheriff's explorer post while a deputy. He, local and regional Scout leaders will try to continue Post 500. If the Police Department wants to continue the post, "we will continue it," Ben Edwards, Scout executive for the seven-county Gulfstream Council said. "The charges are against the officer, not against the post itself."

The Boy Scouts of America charter Explorer posts, Edwards explained, while Gulfstream Council serves as administrator of the programs. There are 15 police explorer posts in the Gulfstream Council.

Investigators say they plan to interview teens in both the Vero Beach police and Indian River County Sheriff's Explorer programs.

"To the best of my knowledge, this is the first time that any allegations of child sexual abuse have been alleged in any of those posts," he added.

"Mr. Scharfschwerdt is no longer the leader, and he has been removed from the rolls of the Boy Scouts of America," Edwards said.

He noted a new, more detailed background investigation for all potential Scout advisers was initiated Sept. 1.

David Baugh, district Scout executive for Indian River County, said he and Gabbard have scheduled a meeting to discuss the status of Post 500.

"(Vero Beach police) are responsible for maintaining and approving of the leadership," Baugh said.

"Obviously, there are changes that need to be done," he added. "One of the things that Boy Scouts are concerned about is the safety of the kids."

"We're going to continue (the Explorer post) as if nothing happened," Vero Beach Lt. Terry

Williamson said. "Of course, there will be a different face in there."

There are between eight and 10 teens in Post 500, Williamson said. Remaining advisers at the post include ID Technician Leslie Justice, Detective Dan Brumley, and Cpl. Dave Winslow.

Post activities include working alongside officers in traffic and crowd control, learning police procedures, and how to properly wear uniforms.

Scharfschwerdt worked as a part-time security officer evenings at Thompson Elementary School but never had any contact with children there, according to the principal.

Scharfschwerdt lived on the school grounds in his own trailer and patrolled the grounds, Principal Dale Klaus said.

Scharfschwerdt was fired from his security job at the school and removed his trailer from the school grounds as soon as the information on his arrest was released Tuesday, Klaus said.

"The School Board made the decision that he was to be evicted immediately," Klaus said. "As soon as we heard, we moved on it."

Klaus emphasized that Scharfschwerdt never had any contact with the school's children.

"He was never around here during the day," Klaus said.

Scharfschwerdt's work was limited to the evenings, when he walked the school grounds and checked doors and windows, Klaus said.

A new person will be hired for the security position and even if Scharfschwerdt is acquitted of the charges, he would not be hired for the job.

"Just because of the nature of the accusations," Klaus said.

Cop Charged With Molesting

By JAMES KIRLEY
Press-Journal Staff Writer

A Vero Beach patrolman and adviser for the department's Police Explorer youth program who was instrumental in the arrests of child molester Gary Martin and accused pedophile William Echols has been arrested and charged with molesting a boy.

James Howard Scharfschwerdt, 31, was charged Tuesday evening with four felony counts of committing a lewd or lascivious act upon a child under 16 years. All incidents involved the same victim, who is now 16, according to Police Chief James Gabbard.

Scharfschwerdt was arrested on the counts at his home at 7:16 p.m. He was released on $10,000 bond later that evening.

Repeated attempts to contact Scharfschwerdt Wednesday were unsuccessful.

"We are continuing the investigation," Gabbard said. "We are interviewing a number of other people, both juveniles and adults."

Scharfschwerdt has been suspended with pay until further notice, Gabbard said.

Asked if there may be other victims involved, Gabbard replied, "We are certainly not ruling out that possibility at this time."

The alleged acts took place between February 1985 and January 1987, according to the arrest affidavit.

It claims the victim first met Scharfschwerdt as a member of the Vero Beach Police Department's Explorer program.

The victim told investigators he went to Scharfsworld's home in February 1985, where the defendant gave him beer and showed pornographic videos.

The victim said Scharfsworld gave him a back rub, took off his pants, masturbated him, then gave him oral sex.

One month later, according to the affidavit, the same youth was offered a ride home from an Explorer's meeting. Instead, investigators claim, Scharfsworld brought beer and drove the youth to a remote area west of Vero Beach, where similar acts were repeated.

Two more incidents reportedly took place, one at Scharfsworld's home and another in a vehicle west of town.

Gabhard and Assistant State Attorney David Morgan both refused to discuss how the alleged crimes were brought to the attention of authorities.

Scharfsworld's personnel file contains two letters regarding the allegations. Both are dated Oct. 13. They notify Scharfsworld and City Manager John Little of the allegations.

"On Sept. 23, 1988, our department received information from the State Attorney's office in the 19th Judicial Circuit regarding alleged criminal conduct committed by you," Gabhard's letter to Scharfsworld read. It informed Scharfsworld he was suspended with pay until further notice.

The Emergency Services Coordinating Committee, comprising all the medical, fire, police and ambulance groups in the county, will meet to discuss the report at 1 p.m. Oct. 28 in the first floor conference room of the County Administration Building.

"An allegation has been made by the State Attorney's office regarding alleged sexual misconduct involving young boys where officer Scharfsworld has provided them with alcoholic beverages," Gabhard's letter informed Little, "and has committed sexual assaults on these minor males." It reads.

Gabhard declined to explain the 20-day delay between being informed by the State Attorney's office and notifying Scharfsworld.

"There's a reason for that, but I won't comment on it right now," Gabhard said. Gabhard said Scharfsworld was instrumental in solving the child molestation case against former Vero Beach police and Indian River County Sheriff Department chaplain Gary Jarlin.

Last Oct. 30, Martin, 36, former minister of the Vero Beach Church of Christ, was sentenced to seven years in prison and eight years probation on five counts of lewd and lascivious conduct stemming from the fondling of genitals of boys aged 11 to 16 between March 1, 1984, and Feb. 27, 1987.

Scharfsworld also helped in the Aug. 11 arrest of former Barber Bridge tender William Nichols, 47, charged with a lewd and lascivious act on a 13-year-old boy.

After the arrest, Scharfsworld told The Press-Journal he had convinced that youth to talk to investigators about Nichols.

Scharfsworld's work with teens is the topic of several letters of thanks in his personnel file.

Examples include a letter of thanks from the Vero Beach High School administration for Scharfsworld's April 11, 1986, arrest of a suspected campus drug dealer; thanks from a grandparent whose runaway grandchild was returned by the patrolman; and a Sept. 13, 1987, employee performance review that states, "Scharfsworld has an excellent rapport in dealing with teen agers."

Scharfsworld's most recent assignment was initiating Vero Beach's first roving beach patrol. He has been driving an alternate cycle five days a week, enforcing city ordinances and watching for hazards.

Scharfsworld was hired by Vero Beach Sam McCall. His starting patrolman's salary was $14,976 a year.

Prior to that, he had been earning $18,772 at the Indian River County Sheriff's Department. He began there Oct. 1979, after jobs as a deputy and dispatcher for the St. Lucie County Sheriff's Department.

Sheriff Tim Dolbeck wrote Scharfsworld Jan. 2, 1985, informing him he would not be reappointed as a deputy.

The letter did not specify reasons, but Scharfsworld had been investigated for a Sept. 23, 1984, incident in which he supposedly fell asleep while guarding prisoners at Indian River Memorial Hospital.

This information apparently found its way to Little, because it was a topic in a May 21, 1985, letter to him from Human Resources Director Jim Huff.

"Scharfsworld was not fired for falling asleep while guarding prisoners, as you were incorrectly informed," Huff wrote Little. "It was four months after this incident was alleged to have occurred that Deputy Scharfsworld and four other men were simply not rehired by the current sheriff."

While you did not reveal the source of your information and concern, Jim Scharfsworld believes that his leadership in establishing a new Explorer Scout group under the sponsorship of our police department has drawn fire from the Sheriff's Department. Jim organized and directed the program at the Sheriff's Department during his tenure there."

In an apparently unrelated incident, a former Vero Beach officer recently was charged with the same offense now facing Scharfsworld.

Robert Leiger, 29, was charged with lewd, lascivious and indecent assault upon a child under 16 on Oct. 11.

He left the Vero Beach police department May 31, 1987. His letter of resignation cited personal reasons.

Scharfsworld is the second Explorers post leader arrested in the last 18 months. Former sheriff's post leader Jeff Sandella, a former deputy, is now serving a one-year jail term for accepting gifts from a cocaine king pin.

Thousands Flee Hurricane Joan

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Hurricane Joan churned toward Central America with 120 mph winds Wednesday and forced thousands to evacuate coastal areas after it left 35 people dead or missing in Colombia.

"It will hit Nicaragua or Costa Rica if it keeps on this track, but there will also be heavy rainfall in Panama," said forecaster Max Masfield at the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Fla.

He said the eye of the storm probably would hit the coast early Friday and that mountainous areas could suffer flash flooding and mudslides in the coming days.

Rainfall of 5 to 10 inches was forecast for the storm's path. The hurricane center said parts of Panama, Costa Rica and Nicaragua might get even heavier rains.

The Colombian islands of San Andres, Albuquerque and Providencia were under a hurricane warning.
